OUTLOOK

During the last monetary board meeting, the BSP kept the policy rate at its record 2% low during the last meeting for 2021 to ensure sustained economic recovery over the next few quarters. However, it raised its inflation forecast of 4.4% and 3.4% for 2021 and 2022, citing potential supply constraints on key food items and transport hike petitions as upside risks.

December inflation eased to 3.6% from 4.2% in November 2021 helped by the deflation in vegetable prices. Although the CPI print was well within the BSP's target range of 2%-4%, it was not enough to pull the average inflation for 2021, which hit 4.5%. As inflation is seen to be tempered moving into next year, there could still be room for the central bank to keep rates accommodative.

Meanwhile, treasury bills saw yields inched slightly higher throughout the month of December, as investors looked to the potential for rising rates globally. However, preference for the shorter end of the curve prevailed as all the auctions continued to be oversubscribed.
