OUTLOOK

Investors have continued to swamp government securities as seen in the bids for Bureau of Treasury's offerings. Yields have declined on the back of strong demand as the market has been parking their excess liquidity in the short end of the curve amid risk aversion.

Meanwhile, the Philippine economy contracted by an annual 4.2% in the quarter ending March, extending the recession to five straight quarters as the pandemic dragged on. On the other hand, the country's inflation rose at a slower pace in June at 4.1%. However, this still marked the sixth straight month of inflation going beyond the 2-4% target for the year of Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP).

With the economy still in need of support and inflation deemed manageable, the BSP kept policy rates unchanged during its latest meeting. The Monetary Board voted to retain the key interest rate to 2% which is still the lowest on record. This has been the policy rate since the surprise cut in November last year.
